

Stop Honor Killings

October 2008, Amina (left) and Sarah Said, allegedly murdered by their father

Sarah Said, 17, and her sister Amina, 18, were found dead in the back seat of a taxicab in Texas. The girls' great-aunt, Gail Gartrell, says the girls' Egyptian-born father killed them both because he felt they disgraced the family by dating non-Muslims and acting too Western, and she called the girls' murders an honor killing from the start.
